DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. This office action is in response to the amendments filed on January 23, 2006 in which applicant amends claims 2-5, 8, 9, 12, adds claims 14-21, cancels claims 1, 6-7, 10-11 and 13, and responds to claim rejections. Claims 2-5, 8, 9, 12 and 14-21 are pending.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 2, 3, 8, 9 and 20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Rakib (US 2002/0019984 A1).
3. Regarding claim 8, the rejection as stated in the previous office action dated 10/19/2005 is maintained and incorporated herein.
4. Rakib further teaches a PDA like remote device wherein the amusement device has a touch screen (paragraph 51) operable to storing a plurality of video games playable on the respective first and third amusement devices using at least the respective video touch screen (Rakib discloses that it is well known in the art that many communication systems commonly implemented provide services such as video on demand, broadband internet access, home security monitoring, and interactive games (paragraph 3) and Rakib further teaches that the PDA like remote is capable of performing one or more of these functions as disclosed in paragraphs 10-17). Finally, the game of Rakib is taught as being disclosed in the headend unit as oppose to being in the remote device, however the examiner has interpreted this as being a mater of design choice and does not increase or alter the functionality of the system wherein the player is still able to play the game on the remote device. Furthermore the device of Rakib is disclosed as being a PDA device, which is well known in the art as being capable of storing and playing videogames.

5. Regarding claim 2 and 3, the previous office action discussed how Rakib teaches an amusement communication system that downloads, stores, and plays received music files (please refer to the previous office action dated 10/19/2005 for a detailed explanation). Rakib further teaches a system which can download, store, and play multimedia files (TIVO, further described on page 7 of Rakib).

6. Regarding claim 9, Rakib teaches the broadcast signal is in the range of one of RF, HI and microwave (paragraphs 51 and 77).

7. Regarding claim 20, wherein the communication link forms a wireless local area network (Fig. 4 and 5 and the description thereof).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

8. Claims 4, 5, 12, 14-19 and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rakib (US 2002/0019984 A1) in view of Knowles (US 5,481,509

9. Regarding claims 12, and 21, the rejections and discussion of the Rakib reference as stated in the office action dated 10/19/2005 is incorporated herein.

10. Regarding the playable video game of claims 12 and 21, please see paragraph 4 above.

11. Further regarding claim 17, 19 and 21, Rakib is silent regarding the amusement device being coin operated, currency operated or credit/debit card operated. In a related patent, Knowles teaches a currency operated jukebox music system. One would be motivated to combine the currency operation method of Martin et al. with the amusement system and controller of Rakib in order to generate income for the owners of the system. Furthermore, Rakib teaches the remote device being capable of ordering video-on-demand programs, wherein the remote is performing the transaction of currency/credit for a service (paragraph 13 of Rakib). Therefore it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to include a currency operated or credit/debit card operation feature similar to Knowles with the amusement system of Rakib in order to generate income and business for the owners of the amusement system.

12. Regarding claim 4 and 16, Rakib is further silent regarding the inclusion of a video touch screen in the second amusement device. Knowles however discloses a video touch screen in a related patent application disclosing a jukebox entertainment system. Therefore it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to implement the second amusement device of Rakib with a video touch screen as taught by Knowles in order to provide more functionality and increased ease of use for users because it is well known in the art that video touch screens offer better functionality than conventional buttons.

13. Regarding claim 5, please see the discussion of claim 12 as stated in the previous office action wherein it is obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to include more than one remote so that other users can access the amusement system from other rooms or locations.

14. Regarding claim 14, please refer to the discussion of claims 2 and 3 above.

15. Regarding claim 15, please refer to the discussion of claim 9 above.

16. Regarding claim 18, please refer to the discussion of claim 20 above.

Response to Arguments

17. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 2-5, 8, 9, 12 and 14-21 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).
